The program requires no external dependencies, just a working network connection and a few megabytes of free disk space. The program is completely free, there is no registration, no nasty third party server to keep running in the background, and you can decide how often it is checked, be it every second, minute, hour, day or week. Mp3Gain PRO offers 3 functions: Normalize the volume of an mp3 file or several files Save the changed volume setting for each file as a default Create mp3 files from several mp3 files Mp3Gain PRO can be used to normalize the volume of several mp3 files, which can be defined as an mp3 file or a set of mp3 files. They do not have to be in the same folder. Optionally a default volume setting for each mp3 file can be saved in the preferences, so that you only have to change the default volume if you change the volume of one or several mp3 files. Mp3Gain PRO features several configurable settings, which can be accessed in the preferences. The most important options are the: frequency (days) at which the program is checked for changed volume settings for all files frequency (hours) at which the program is checked for changed volume settings for all files frequency (minutes) at which the program is checked for changed volume settings for all files frequency (seconds) at which the program is checked for changed volume settings for all files frequency (centiseconds) at which the program is checked for changed volume settings for all files This will ensure that only the most important changes are taken into account, and that the program is not wasting its time on changes which have no effect. After your preferences are saved, you can use the 3 buttons on the mp3 volume normalizer toolbar: - "normalize volume" - change the volume of each mp3 file, relative to its original volume, as defined in the settings (relative volume). - "save settings" - save the changed volume for each mp3 file in the preferences - "save all" - save the changed volume for all mp3 files in the preferences AudioNormalizer AudioNormalizer is a free volume normalizer with easy-to-use interface. It is a small, easy to use and simple tool. The most noticeable difference between AudioNormalizer and other volume normalizers 82157476af
